Feminine TRENDS

Bad girl goes good for fall 2015. Sugar sweet pastels, frills and flounces... the girly aesthetic makes bold return for fall

Florals

Baby-dolls IN PASTELS

The perfect mix of playful innocence and alluring femininity, the pastel-hued baby-dolls that walked the fall 2015 runways were the first to point towards the return of the girly coquette. If you want to channel the Lolita look for fall, invest in a sexy baby-doll, strappy or long-sleeved, embellished or adorned with sheer parts.

SWEET & SEXY FROCKS

More than anything else, the feminine but playful look for fall is all about easy dresses bearing flirty cuts. These dresses may look breezy and chic, but their silhouettes are definitely sexed-up. Opt for airy fabrics in dark prints, as well as ultra-short silhouettes, or those falling just above the knee. Plunging necklines are mandatory.

SULTRY LACE

The leading silhouettes for feminine but flirty looks are those decked in sheer, or made sexy with sultry lace inserts. Mastering the look with layers of sheer made to look ethereal and sexy at once and lace inserts that cover and reveal at the same time. Accessorize with luxe heels and red lips.

FLORAL EMBROIDERIES

Florals play a big part in all sorts of feminine trends and when it comes to bad girl gone good, things are no different. Whether embroidered, embellished or printed, the florals add a dash of romance to an otherwise sexy looks. The key is to balance off one with the other with the help of flirty cuts, mini-silhouettes, and colorful designs.
